

Data Privacy & Information Governance

Some of the wealthiest families in the nation consult Neal Gerber Eisenberg for market-leading counsel on data privacy and information governance-related issues. Our team has in-depth knowledge of core operational technologies and understands how technology aligns with business strategy and the heightened need for security and confidentiality inherent in family office structures.

We draw on the strengths our Intellectual Property practice to advise family offices and other entities on how to implement data privacy and information governance initiatives. We work closely with clients to build efficient and effective information governance programs and advise clients on domestic and international data privacy issues, including privacy policies and cross-border data flows.

Our specialists include attorneys that have earned CIPP/US and CIPM certifications from the International Association of Privacy Professionals (IAPP) and related credentials indicating their comprehensive knowledge of U.S. data privacy laws, regulations and requirements.
